c£45,000 + excellent benefits package, central London

IMS Consulting is a leading international financial services compliance consultancy. Since 1996 it has built up an enviable client base and today provides support, advice and project management services to more than 200 institutional clients worldwide. It operates primarily in the asset management, investment banking and capital markets sectors.

Due to continued expansion in London and plans to open a New York office by mid-2005, they are currently recruiting two additional consultants to provide advice to a range of clients on compliance and regulatory issues, in line with the requirements of the FSA. This will include overseeing the compliance function at client firms through the provision of monitoring, advice, training, the set-up of systems and procedures, and reporting to the Board, as well as regular liaison with the FSA on behalf of clients. To be successful in this role, you will need excellent communication skills to ensure that their clients receive a professional, knowledgeable and efficient level of service.

Applications are invited from graduates with at least three years' experience working within the compliance function of a fund management firm, at the FSA or within the regulatory division of a leading accountancy or consultancy practice. Alternatively, you may be a qualified accountant who has focused on the auditing of financial services firms and is now looking to move into a broader regulatory position. Specific product understanding should include institutional, retail or alternative fund management products.
