Finance Director / General Manager • c£70,000 • London

VICE is one of the fastest growing youth media companies in the world. Founded in 1994, VICE has established itself internationally as a unique force in publishing both in print and online. The European business, launched in London in 2002 now has operations in the UK, Scandinavia, Germany, Italy, France and Benelux. The organisation is owned by the American parent, management and private investors.

VICE is expanding its operations into new territories within Europe and into new lines of business including events, DVD, music, marketing services and books. To oversee this planned expansion and growth, the business is currently recruiting a Finance Director / General Manager. As a key part of the management board and working directly with the sales director, business development director and the CEO, the role will work on the business structure, expansion model, deal execution, improving cash flow, negotiating supplier contracts, risk analysis, cost control and clear communication to the board and shareholders.

The successful candidate will be an ambitious, qualified accountant, who has worked within a fast paced, dynamic, entrepreneurial environment. Experience of media, deal negotiations and licensing is important as is the ability to make key business decisions.

This is a fantastic opportunity to be part of an exciting and fast growing business. The results-based rewards will be outstanding for the right person who will be a key factor in driving the group through this growth phase and beyond.

Please respond in confidence quoting reference FT/WSC/94 to our retained consultant William Scrimshaw or Shereen Khan at Finance Professionals.
